(d) Non-treated control, Saos-2 cells were treated with 10 μ M MG-132 for 24 h to assess efficiency of caspase-3 cleavage. Lysates were examined for cleaved caspase-3. Actin was used as a loading control. (e)

Apoptotic morphology of non-treated control, MG-132-treated, and MG-132/DAPT-treated Saos-2 cells. For apoptosis induction, cells were treated with 10 μ M MG-132 or 10 μ M MG-132/500 μ M DAPT for 72 h and stained with DAPI (blue) and TUNEL (red). Scale bars, 20 μ m. To analyse the additive effect of Notch and apoptosis inhibition, we used apoptosis inhibitors, respectively. As shown in Fig. 6c,d{ref-type="fig"}, a combination treatment of 10 μ M

MG-132 and a 10 μ M DAPT for 72 h induced a synergistic increase of cleaved caspase-3 and the frequency of apoptotic cells in Saos-2 cells. Further, we assessed apoptosis in cells under the condition of combined inhibition of Notch and MG-132 treatment. Our results showed that combined inhibition of Notch and MG-132 treatment resulted in an additive effect in the cell-cycle analysis (Fig. 6b{ref-type="fig"}). Moreover, additive increase of apoptotic cells after the combined inhibition of Notch and MG-132 treatment were confirmed (Fig. 6e{ref-type="fig"}). This result clearly demonstrated that inhibition of Notch pathway in MG-132-treated
